

PAYMENT REFORM IS COMING APA IS HERE TO HELP.

The Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act of 2015 (MACRA) changes the way psychiatrists and other physicians working with Medicare patients will be paid.

Some reporting requirements begin as early as January 1, 2017.

WHAT IS THE GOAL?

To reimburse care based on quality and value rather than the number of services you provide.

WHAT IF I DON'T COMPLY?

Refusing to comply could result in automatic penalties and missing out on possible incentives.

HOW CAN I GET READY TO COMPLY?

You'll need to select a payment path. Rather than continuing a fee-for-service model of reimbursement, MACRA introduces two new payment paths - MIPS and APMs:

MIPS

Merit-Based Incentive Payment System

MIPS combines portions of three preexisting quality programs: meaningful use (MU), the Physician Quality Reporting System (PQRS) and the Value-Based Payment Modifier (VBM). MIPS also adds a new category of Clinical Practice Improvement Activities.

Providers receive payment adjustments based on measures of quality, resource use, advancing care information (EHR use) and clinical practice improvement.

APMs

Alternative Payment Models*

APMs include Accountable Care Organizations, Bundled Payments and Medical Homes. Participating in an advanced APM can exempt you from MIPS, and can lead to more favorable financial incentives, including a potential 5% lump sum bonus payment.

There is currently no APM specifically for behavioral health.*

Choosing an APM requires you to meet quality, financial risk and payer/revenue mix measurements.

HOW WILL THIS CHANGE MY PRACTICE?

An increased focus on quality will require you to track and manage patient information in a new way and coordinate care with other providers. See the reverse for how APA can help you prepare.
